History of Butler College

Reprinted from the 1921 Drift.

At a meeting of the Disciples of Christ, September 29, 1848, at the Little Flat Rock Church in Rush County, the question was asked, "Shall we build a college?" The answer was affirmative and at a meeting in October, 1849, a resolution was adopted definitely naming Indianapolis as the location for the proposed school.

In the laws of the State of Indiana the reader will find the charter of the Northwestern Christian University, approved January 15, 1850. Familiar names appear among the incorporators: Butler, Goodwin, Hoshour, Hopkins, Jameson, New, Cole, O'Kane and many others.

Who of the readers of this can name the first faculty? John Young, acting President; G.W. Hoss, Mathematics and Civil Engineering; J.R. Challen, English and Normal School.

But the first faculty consisted of but four members.

The institution was authorized to issue stock to the amount of $75,000 at least. The formal opening did not take place until 1855, though the first Board of Directors was chosen July 14, 1852, and the second Board, July 11, 1855.

The building for the new institution was on the corner of what is now College Avenue and Thirteenth Street. This was out in the country at that time. The campus eventually extended to Sixteenth Street on the north and the L.E. & W tracks on the east. The sessions were held for twenty years in the one building on this ground—a structure Gothic in character and a landmark in that part of the city.

The period of the Civil War was a great drain on the college, for many of the boys enlisted.

Some never came back. Joe Gordon, whose portrait hangs in the college chapel, was one of these. President Scott Butler went to the colors and served three years. The record was honorable then in that time of stress, as it was in the Great War, more than a half century later.

It must be remembered that for most of these years a law school was conducted as a part of the college. Byron K. Elliot was the head of it for a large part of its existence.

Removal to a new site became necessary and this occurred in 1875. The community of Irvington, then a suburb, gave money and ground and as a result the change was made. In recognition of the benefactions of Ovid Butler, who had served for nearly a quarter of a century as president of the board of directors, the name of the institution was changed to Butler College, soon after the move to Irvington. This official action was taken February 22, 1877.

In all these years there was a preparatory department in the college corresponding to courses now given in high schools. The last year of this department was 1906-07, and the head of the school was Omar Wilson. During 1904-07, the college was a part of the University of Indianapolis, which existed partly on paper, but represented an ideal which some day should and will be realized.

The increase in buildings continued until the last one, the new gymnasium was added a short time ago. Irwin Field had been enclosed before this, taking the place of the limited space on the main campus. The buildings were added in about the following order: the College Residence for Women, the Gymnasium, Burgess Hall, the Observatory, the Bona Thompson Memorial Library and then the College of Missions, which, though not owned by the Butler authorities, is intimately connected in its field of operations. Nor should we overlook the cafeteria belonging to the domestic science department.

Many students of Butler College went to the colors in the Great War, and their record in all respects was honorable and inspiring. The twelve gold stars in the service flag bear silent witness to those who never came back.

The recent growth in the college shows a new life and spirit, and ere many years have passed the historian of the institution will have quite a task to keep pace with its growth.

In these times of pressing forward and of hopes pinned far ahead, it is often a welcome rest to stop and take a backward look over the years we have already covered. The persons who did this or that thing for the first time always catch our interest; for they are the symbol of the fruit which comes afterward.

The first graduate of Butler College has a claim on us in this respect. This is no longer a youthful institution, for the first class was graduated in 1856.

Mrs. Nancy E. Atkinson, who now lives in Irvington, was the first woman graduate and is the only living representative of that first class, which was composed of three men and herself. After graduation Mrs. Atkinson continued her connection with the school by teaching English in the Northwestern Christian University from 1858 until the outbreak of the Civil War. Most of the students enlisted, so her classes were disbanded.

This woman, who was born in 1837, is a real and tangible connecting link with the past, and it is quite fitting and appropriate that we have her picture in the 1921 Drift, for from our heritage our future must draw its start.

THE BUTLER WAR SONG

(By John Hoss, '75)

Oh! We're Here Just to Cheer for Old Butler,
Sing a Song for the Throng Who
Love Her Name,
And the Hearts that are True to the Royal Blue,
To the Spirit That Spreads Her Fame.

Men May Come—Men May Go to
Other War Songs,
But the Victory Cry "Old Butler
Shines Tonight,"
Is the Call that Brings Us All to the Scene, We'll be Here!
To the Place Where the Bulldogs
Fight.

Chorus

We'll Sing the Butler War Song,
We'll Give the Fighting Cry,
We'll Fight the Butler Battle,
Bulldogs—Ever Do or Die,
And in the Glow of the Victory Fire
Light
Hail's Cannot Dey
To Add a Page or Two for Butler's
Fighting Crew
Beneath Our Banner Sky.

Smiling faces at Butler University

On or off campus, Butler students wear a smile of friendliness, respect, and pride.

Jumping for Joy

Exuberant freshmen scream out their birthday month at the icebreaking PlayFair, highlighting Welcome Week.

Hampton Drive Block Party

Senior Amy Curtis takes a glance at the camera while conversing with senior Kelly Satterfield.

Why did you choose Butler University?

Michael Kaltenmark
Sophomore

"It's a far superior school. A top notch education and a top notch facility. That's all I have to say about that."

Kari Calabrese
Senior

"I chose Butler because of the atmosphere. You are in a big city, and you can do all the big city things, yet you don't feel like you're downtown."

Aaron Bak
Senior

"Butler's faculty and students are really interested in the lives of incoming freshmen. Through campus visits and phone conversations, I felt extremely welcome along with a sense of belonging."

Andrea Peet
5th Year

"I came to Butler because it was close to home, but far enough away that I wouldn't come home every weekend to do my laundry."

Information Desk
5th year student Jill Forgey and sophomore Kara Abel discuss the stock market as sophomore Erin Nichols drinks Pepsi.

Just Foolin' Around
Members of TKE frolic in the mall during Greek Olympics.

Sloppy Seconds
Delta Gamma Katie Alexander smirks after searching for a lone jelly bean inside of a whip cream pie.

Soccer Madness
A Butler soccer fan leaps to his feet after the Bulldogs put one past the opposing team's keeper and into the back of the net.

Change

Interimship

Gwen Fountain will temporarily attempt to fill the shoes of Geoffrey Bannister as Butler's Interim President.

Before the mall

With President Bannister's backing, sidewalks replaced the roads in 1991. The new mall helped quiet Butler's commuter reputation of the past.

Butler's 18th president says goodbye

President Geoffrey Bannister makes one of his final speeches at Butler during the groundbreaking of the new Fairbanks building. Even though he's going away, we know he'll be in a better place . . . we'll really miss you homie.

Focus on enlargement

Geoffrey Bannister also saw the need for a new residence hall to increase the success of Butler University. His efforts created Residential College.

From the class of 2000

The senior class donated a clock located between Atherton and Jordan. The clock symbolized the new Millennium and change.

7 he campus of today

After years of change, Butler's campus aims to meet the needs of the students.

Ultimate Frisbee

A group of Butler students participate in a pick-up game of Ultimate Frisbee on the mall.

Swing And A Miss

A woman of Kappa Kappa Gamma goes down swinging during Theta Grill-Off, held in the Schwitzer lawn.

What is one thing you'd change about campus?

Brandon York
Sophomore

"I like Butler so much, I really wouldn't make any changes to our campus."

Melinda Sjoblom
Senior

"The one thing that I would change about Butler is the lack of diversity in the student, faculty, and staff population. I think it would help enrich everyone's experiences to have more diversity on campus."

Heather Castle
Sophomore

"If I could change one thing it would be the excessive amount of sidewalk chalk used during homecoming. I'm all about school spirit, but we all have to find our limits."

Jill Koenen
Sophomore

"I think I would put in covered moving sidewalks...or maybe just have the crazy aramark people in the golf carts give rides to class."

Just Chillin'
Freshmen enjoy grub and music during the annual Block Party.

Watch Out For That Bus!
I don't know about you, but I'm not getting in that guys way. He can have the touchdown as far as I'm concerned. That guy -- 6, me -- 0.

Just Doin' It!
Nike gets yet more free advertisement from a PlayFair-ing freshman female.

Warm November
A Butler female enjoys the unusually warm autumn weather as she studies on the mall.

Phi Psi, Alpha Chi victorious in all-night fight

By Laurie Bowman
Assistant Editor

Where else can 60 pizzas be devoured in less than eight minutes?

Butler's annual all-night sports competition, Spring Sports Spectacular, celebrated its 10th anniversary on Feb. 18-19.

Volunteers sported shirts bearing the motto "Only the Strong Survive" during the 12 hours of food, sports, and good, healthy rivalry.

Butler SGA presented a check for $605 to Special Olympics from the housing units' entry fees at opening ceremonies.

After the competition, the winning housing units, the men of Phi Kappa Psi and the women of Alpha Chi Omega also received $605 to donate to their respective philanthropies.

Krispy Kreme, Papa John's, and Subway kept hungry fans and competitors happy throughout the events, which included a slam dunk competition, indoor soccer, volleyball, tug of war, track and swimming races.

Senior Michelle Tangen has attended Spring Sports Spectacular every year since she was a freshman.

"I like that everyone is there," she said.

"You can walk around all night and see different people. Plus it's fun to support the houses and watch the competition."

Dreary day ends week of festivities

By Amber Connolly
Copy Editor

Traditions, reunions, and celebrations, are three words that come to mind when one thinks of Homcoming events.

The week leading up to the game against Valparaiso was filled with the traditional sporting competitions, King and Queen voting and "Yell Like Hell" competitions. Rain and inclement weather cancelled the annual parade and fireworks, but did not dampen the excitement that had been building on campus.

Storm clouds stayed above the Butler Bowl throughout the afternoon of the game, but the true spirit of Homecoming was still there. Many alumni came to cheer on the Bulldogs and to see former classmates. They came out in numbers and relived their college days by tailgating in the parking lot.

As with all Homecoming weeks, Homecoming 1999 celebrated Butler's past, present and future.

Kappa Kappa Gamma, Phi Kappa Psi win Stunts

By Chad Eric Martin
Editor-in-Chief

T'was an evening of historical proportions for the Butler YMCA. Making its initial debut in 1919, Geneva Stunts commemorated its 80th anniversary with the theme entitled "Years In The Making, Celebrate Our Anniversary." The night consisted of great skits, song and dance with excellent acts from all participating groups.

Taking first prize overall were the men of Phi Kappa Psi and the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma who also won the banner competition.

The women of Pi Beta Phi, the women of Hampton House, the men and women of Ross Hall and ResCo, as well as the Commuters (hell, they should have added faculty and staff, too) took second place overall. They also won most original skit.

The women of Schwitzer Hall and the men of Delta Tau Delta placed third overall and took first place in the spirit category.

Start Spreading The News

By Laurie Bowman
Assistant Editor

Spring Sing 2000 performers used their vocal talents to usher in the season. On April 1 paired housing units sang and danced in the annual competition to the theme "Bit by the Millennium Bug."

Emcees Josh Abel and Erin Hooker caught some bugs oddly resembling the Village People to start off the night with their version of "YMCA" before the performances began.

Jordan Jazz once again sang their hit song "Chili Con Carne" and the Butler Dance Team also entertained the audience.

Sigma Chi and Schwitzer Hall received the spirit award.

Kappa Alpha Theta and Tau Kappa Epsilon won the award for best banner, placing third overall.

Delta Gamma and Delta Tau Delta took second.

Alpha Phi and Phi Kappa Psi won the Originality and Musicality awards, finishing first in the overall competition.

Reaching for the sky
The men of Phi Kappa Psi and women of Alpha Phi aim high during their victorious performance.

Blues Clues
Women of Kappa Kappa Gamma and men of Sigma Nu search for Blues Clues.

Back in black
Women of Alpha Chi Omega sing a tune to appease to the crowd and judges.

Campus Improvements

Renovations and expansion cater to Butler students' wants and needs.

Bookstore Expansion

During the spring of 1999, the bookstore began its expansion process with completion occurring before the fall semester of 1999.

"Goopy Cheese!"

The Campus Club expansion allowed for the same crappy food to be dispersed from a different location in the C-Club.

E-mail Stations

Computer e-mail stations were added in the bookstore creating a convenient way for Butler students to check their e-mail.

Karaoke Queens

Butler students sing in four-part harmony outside the new Starbucks Café in Atherton Union.

Star Spangled Cafe

So maybe Aramark didn't improve on their food, but at least the checkered floor and themed food area signage looks nice.

New Addition

The men of Phi Kappa Psi finished off a new house addition which doubled the size of their house.

"Starbucks Coffee – expensive because we know you'll pay for it"

The Starbucks addition to the bookstore provided a social gathering spot and a pleasant studying area in Atherton Union.

Confined

Three C-Club renovation workers are quarantined in the C-Club after contracting a fatal foot fungus during the early weeks of construction.

Behind the monitor

Computer labs, hardware and software have continually been upgraded by Information Resources throughout the year.

Academics

Over a century of superb academics, Butler University continues to educate its students, preparing them for the real world which lies ahead.

Laura Cook
Junior

Accounting

"The CBA has been a great networking tool for the business world."

Megan Lentine
Junior

Marketing

"The CBA offers many exciting opportunities to be involved, and these activities are preparing me for the future."

Brad Sturm
Sophomore

Accounting / Spanish

"They tell me what classes to take."

Dee Gees, Phi Psis win Blue Key's Freshman Skits

By Chad Eric Martin
Editor-in-Chief

"Butler Blue-pers" was the theme of the this year's annual freshman skits, sponsored by Blue Key. The night proved to be full of enjoyment and laughs for all in attendance in the overcrowded Reilly Room.

The "Blue-pers" were judged by highly regarded Butler faculty members which included Dr. Steven Vibbert, Marv Recht, Lacey Echols, Paul Sandin and Michael Whitman. This year the men and women were judged separately.

Highlighting the night's performances were the new members of Delta Gamma and the freshman pledge class of Phi Kappa Psi.

Both acts captured the first prize, edging out the competitors which included Kappa Kappa Gamma, Alpha Phi, Kappa Alpha Theta and Alpha Chi Omega for the women and Sigma Chi and Lambda Chi for the men.

YMCA celebrates lasting tradition

By Sarah Rahall
Staff Writer

Over 800 campus YMCAs used to populate the country. However, today they are less than 40. One of those remaining YMCAs is the Butler YMCA.

"I'd say that we're still pretty strong," said Linnea Leatherman, Executive Director, Butler University Intercollegiate YMCA. "I believe that's because we have some pretty old campus traditions that are solely our responsibility, and not of any other campus organization."

According to Leatherman, Butler's YMCA has been around for a very long time.

"We are the oldest in the city, having begun at the Irvington campus of Butler in 1879," she said. "The YMCA of America is only 150 this year so we've been around only 29 years less than that."

Leatherman said she has learned many things from being a part of the organization.

"I have learned how different each year is because of the personalities of the student officers," she said. "No year is the same as another. I have learned that, if you allow students to assume a leadership role, it is sometimes better to let them fail because they learn from that experience more than if I had taken over to prevent it."

Junior Brianne Brockman, who has been a part of various YMCAs for the last eight years, including three at Butler, has also learned many things from the organization.

"The YMCA, not just at Butler, has provided me with leadership abilities and skills that I can utilize throughout my life," she said. "I have developed friendships with people that I may have never known and it has given me the ability and the satisfaction of helping people who need my and others' help."

According to Leatherman, the YMCA puts on many activities at Butler each year.

Some of these include Direction Sports, Giving Tree, Freshman Weekend, Chapel Services, Skip-a-Meal and Outstanding Freshman awards.

However, perhaps the YMCA's most popular events are Spring Sing and Geneva Stunts.

"Spring Sing is over 55 years old," she said. "This started out as a torchlight sing in Holcomb Gardens."

According to Leatherman, Geneva Stunts turned 80 years old last fall.

"This started as a fund-raiser for students going to a YMCA leadership conference in Lake Geneva, Wisconsin," she said.

And 80 years later, Geneva Stunts is still going strong.

Brockman was the overall director of Geneva Stunts this year, which she feels has been her most fulfilling experience with the YMCA thus far.

"I had so much fun putting that all together," she said. "It was a lot of work, but I had a lot of great help and it was one of the best Geneva Stunts that Butler has ever had."

President of Butler's YMCA John Dunn feels that all of the programs it puts on are for a very good cause.

"The best part about being involved with the YMCA has been making a difference in the lives of the less fortunate," he said. "The YMCA has a strong commitment to the Indianapolis community and to Butler University. Our all campus programs like Spring Sing and Geneva Stunts are long-standing traditions at Butler, and our service programs like Giving Tree, and Direction Sports are rewarding for all of those involved."

Brockman has really enjoyed her hours spent with the organization.

"I love the YMCA," she said. "I love being a part of it in any capacity. I think it is just great to get to know people and offer some fun things to do on campus."

Brockman encourages students to get involved with Butler's YMCA.

"The YMCA is a great organization to be involved with here at Butler," she said. "We help the community as well as offer things on campus. We would like to expand some programs and perhaps add some different ones. To do this we need the help of dedicated and creative individuals."

The Butler Collegian

Weekly newspaper informs, entertains entire student body

Reprinted from the premiere publication of the Drift, 1891.

The Butler Collegian made its appearance in the college world in January, 1886, and was the outgrowth of a desire among the students to be represented in that field of amateur literature, somewhat circumscribed, but, nevertheless, full of spirit and enthusiasm, known as college journalism.

The need of some magazine as an exponent of the literary life and spirit of the students had long been felt, and the five literary societies, the Mathesian, Pythonian, Athenian, Philokurian and Demia Butler, as best representing the whole body of the students took the lead and formed the editing staff by electing two representatives from each society. These organized the first board of editors by electing H.N. Kelsey editor-in-chief.

Its intention, as was outlined in the beginning, has been to afford a medium of communication with the outside student world, to preserve the interest of the alumni, and to afford to the students an opportunity of giving an expression to their opinions or literary talents.

The magazine has tried to publish as many items of interest to the outside world as may happen in its limited sphere of action, and to give to the public the best literary productions of the students, together with all the prize essays and orations as representative of the very best work of the classroom and rostrum.

Beginning on a somewhat narrow basis, it very early enlarged its dimensions, and steadily adhering to its original intention, it has advanced both in quality and quantity of its contents until now it stands a peer to any college periodical in America.

At present, it is a neat twenty-four page magazine, published on the 15th of each month during the college year. For the present year it has been more successful than ever before, and has repeatedly been the recipient of flattering compliments from its contemporaries for the high merit of its literary contributions, and for the brightness of its local columns.

How do you think the Collegian effects campus?

John Servizzi
Managing Editor

"Sometimes the Butler student body comes off a little apathetic. When the Collegian is released that apathy disappears. Whether you like what we're saying or not, The Collegian helps urge the student body towards an opinion; thanks to a tremendously dedicated and talented staff."

Greg Weitekamp
Sports Editor

"Even as a staff member, I really don't think it effects the campus. By the time the stories come out, the faculty generally has already heard about it, and the students are so apathetic that they don't care. While things are important that come out in the paper, people just don't take it to heart."

Kelli Rutherford
News Editor

"The Collegian gives a voice to every person on this campus. And although you might not accept or agree with what is said, you have to respect the right and courage to say it, and even appreciate the staff that works so hard each semester to put the paper together."

Luke Marquard
Entertainment Editor

"I have nothing good to say about the Collegian, except that it makes good kindling. It also allows people to express their frustrations as columnists such as Blake Dearing do."

Feeling the Rush

Freshmen participate in week-long event to see what Greek system can offer.

By Amber Connolly
Copy Editor

Not even the tradition of Greek-letter organizations' "Rush" is exempt from today's trend of changing words and slogans to be more politically correct and acceptable. Rush has been transformed to the more acceptable term, "Formal Recruitment."

For Butler University, Formal Recruitment took place the week of January 10, 2000. Both men's fraternities and women's sororities participated in the event. Approximately 300 women and 140 men registered to go through the recruitment process.

From the women's perspective, the week was marked with interesting conversations and long intervals shivering in the cold between parties.

"Besides the fact that each group had to stand outside in the freezing cold while we waited, everything was wonderful," said Randi Carpenter. "It was one of the best experiences I have ever had."

The men participating in Rush had a less rigid schedule for the week, but nonetheless were able to make informed decisions about choosing an organization to join. Freshman Will Haskett said, "I was able to see what house was right for me by imagining myself living in each of the houses with the guys."

At the end of the week-long process, 325 new members – 216 women and 109 men were added to the Greek system at Butler University according to Douglas Palmquist, Director of Greek Affairs.

Counting Down

Female Formal Recruitment participants await the clock before touring each sorority house.

Alternative Fall ^ Break

Students sacrifice free time to help others

This fall 46 students and faculty travelled eight hours to Pipestem, W.V. as part of the FAB service project. These students volunteered their time to help the less fortunate in the Appalachian area. The projects included various jobs from building a deck, painting a house and tar papering a roof to resealing a driveway and hanging curtain rods. The group started out as 46 individuals, but returned as a group with a united relationship.

Justin Young
Junior

"I read."

Study Abroad

Study Abroad program offers worldly experience

For me, studying abroad was a defining time of my college career. Spending a semester in London, I was able to immerse myself in another culture. I was a student, but more than just a college student. I was a student of music as I went to the London Symphony Orchestra or jazz concerts at the Royal Festival Hall. I was a student of art when I went to the Tate Art Gallery to look at the Monets or Picassos. I was a student of people when I went to the pubs to interact with the British. And I was a student of history and geography as I traveled around Europe. C&T became exciting. Art History took on a history of its own, and International Economics became dynamic. Yes, studying abroad was truly a life-enriching experience; it opened my eyes to the people and places in the world around me.

Spring Break

Getaways offer fun, friendship and relaxation.

The anticipation filled the air. The countdown was publicly announced each day. Many daydreamed of warm beaches while others just wanted a break from the books. Wherever Butler students ended up over March 10th through March 19th, spring break once again provided warm adventures and late nights for some and quiet naps on the couch for others. Whatever the destination, spring break became another learning experience for Butler students in the path of life.

Social Life @Butler

Friendships and responsibility increase from social freedom

From the moment we waved good-bye to our parents freshman year, our responsibilities increased dramatically. No longer was someone going to wash our clothes, or tell us to be home before midnight. Although Butler is not known for its social life, many students do choose to stay out late, enjoying life to its fullest after hours of stress from papers and tests. Some social events took place at the bars, at fraternity houses, and at the Hinkle parking lot, while other events were sponsored by campus organizations such as SGA. No matter what the event, the laughter, smiles and sometimes tears shared with those we called our friends will be memories that forever live in our hearts.

Tailgating Fools

Three Butler men enjoy the sunny day by tailgating in the Hinkle parking lot, before a game against Morehead State.

Smoochy Smooch

Sophomore Nick Sproull receives some extra special attention from two Butler women. Nick later admitted to paying these lovely women for the kisses.

Baseball Talk

Senior Dereck Vanlandingham explains the proper way to throw a curve ball to senior Eric Smith, who pretends he's listening.

"Baby, you lookin' good!"

Sophomore Travis Cobbins eyes Janai Downs during Welcome Week Casino Night.

Pre-Barn Bash

Campus party-goers drink their "happy drinks" before the Alpha Phi Barn Bash.

What was your favorite place to go on the weekend?

"On a Saturday afternoon, there's nothing I like better than watching a movie on the TV at the Alpha Phi house."

Sophomore
Nicole Brouillard

"Paco's, because people of all ages can drink there."

Senior

What is missing from the Butler social scene?

Trevor Marienau
Senior
"Orangatang in leisure suits riding tiny tricycles. We need more of them."

Chad Stegemiller
Junior
"Fun. Many students leave on the weekends so you really can't have a social scene without the students being here."

Katie Miller
Senior
"We need to have more parties in the Reilly room so everyone doesn't have to leave campus."

Emily Scavuzzo
Senior
"Parties. When I was a freshman, there was always a party on Thursday, Friday and Saturday night. Now that the new alcohol rules are in place, there are no more spontaneous parties and none at all on Thursday nights."

Dating 101

Dating scene produces friendships, relationships.

By Roxy Kish
Editor-in-Chief

Dating is one of the most exciting aspects to college life. On a small campus like Butler's, dating becomes an even bigger event. Why? Because everyone knows who is dating everyone else. The Drift has once again selected seven couples to tell you about their on-campus dating experiences.

These couples have all dated for at least one year, all attend Butler and all have interesting stories to share with other college students.

A few topics are easily agreed on by most of these couples. Dates are hard to plan. Nobody likes to pay for them. And communication is the key to maintaining a successful relationship.

Bryan Welsweaver & Tammy Wilson

How did you first meet?

Both: World Geography class, freshman year of high school.

What is your favorite date place to re-visit together?

M: I enjoy the fresh summer breeze at the park.

F: Silver Beach in St. Ives Michigan.

Who decides where you go on a date?

M: Mutual, but it always takes forever because she is indecisive.

F: I always used to make him decide but now we both decide together.

What is the nicest thing he/she has ever done for you?

M: A picnic at the beach.

F: He actually knew it was "Sweetest Day". I was surprised when he brought me a bag of Skittles.

What is his/her most attractive feature?

M: Her beautiful and loving face.

F: His clear complexion and beautiful blue eyes.

What might your friends say the most annoying part of your relationship is?

M: I don't hang out enough with the guys.

F: That I never get tired of spending time with Bryan.

Who is more sensitive in the relationship?

M: She is — big time!

F: I am more sensitive but don't let him fool you, he's sensitive, too.

What makes him/her more unique than anyone else?

M: Star personality, very goal-oriented.

F: He is extremely hard-working.

Who is always right?

M: She "thinks" she is.

F: I am.

What's your song?

"How Can I Live Without You"

What did your parents think when they first met your boy/girlfriend?

M: That she was very sweet.

F: Not much at first, but now I think they like him more than they like me.

How did you get engaged?

M: I proposed on a pier in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

What is the hardest thing about planning a wedding?

Both: Still have 3 years to go, so far it's deciding where to get married.

What are your plans after college?

M: Find a well-paying job and marry the love of my life.

How did you first meet?

M: I met her in my bath towel and I was pretty embarrassed. Later we mimed together at the Sigma Chi sweetheart's dance and I pulled out all my magic tricks...literally!

Where did you go on your first date?

F: We went to a restaurant called Mugst-y's and celebrated a birthday with the owners. After the date he gave me a red rose and dropped me off (I loved it!)

What is your favorite date place to re-visit together?

M: Fountain Square Theatre is one of our favorite date places because we can dance the night away...swing dance!

F: Whenever we really plan a date we always go to Buca's.

Who decides where you go on a date?

F: We both mutually decide unless one of us takes the initiative to plan the whole evening to make it a surprise for the other.

What is his/her most attractive feature?

M: Her eyes because I know what she is thinking without her even having to say a word.

F: His smile because it can change my outlook on any day.

What might your friends say the most annoying part of your relationship is?

M: That we are too cute together — like our matching polar bear pajamas!

F: My roommates call us "Mr. & Mrs. Goggly Eyes" because sometimes we get lost in each other!

Who is more sensitive in the relationship?

M: Casey is more sensitive.

F: Definitely Brent — he always wants to talk about things to make sure we are both on the same page.

Who is always right?

M: According to her, she is!

F: I am!

What's your song?

"I Do" by 98 Degrees

What is the most absurd thing you've done together?

M: We took an 18 hour mad trip to Florida and had a wonderful time.

F: Our love for road trips: Canada, New York, Florida, Wisconsin, Cincinnati.

Casey Hochtritt & Brent Rockwood

How did you first meet?

M: During the first week of my junior year at the Lambda Chi house.

Where did you go on your first date?

M: Yen Ching - a chinese restaurant on 86th Street.

F: It was very strange when Rob opened his fortune cookie and it said "An unexpected relationship will become permanent."

What is your favorite date place to re-visit together?

Both: Olive Garden, we just love the free salad and breadsticks.

Who decides where you go on a date?

M: Both of us — we randomly take turns.

F: He doesn't always take charge, so sometimes I have to.

What is the nicest thing he/she has ever done for you?

M: She is always giving me little cards to remind me how she feels.

F: He sent me flowers on Halloween. I didn't expect it, especially on a holiday like Halloween.

What is his/her most attractive feature?

M: Her eyes, no her little nose, no, definitely the nape of her neck.

F: His smile. No matter how upset I may be, just a glimpse of his smile makes me melt.

What might your friends say the most annoying part of your relationship is?

M: We always spend the evenings together.

Who is more sensitive in the relationship?

M: She is.

F: I am.

Who is always right?

M: She doesn't like it, but I AM.

F: Please, I'm always right.

What's your song?

"They Don't Know" by Jon B.

What did your parents think when they first met your boy/girlfriend?

M: My mom called her "Becky"! She has a bad memory and didn't remember her name..

F: My parents adore Rob.

What are your plans after college?

M: Attend law school or become an Army officer.

F: Only time will tell, we just take life one day at a time.

How did you first meet?

M: It's a long story.
F: Over a bottle of peppermint schnapps.

Where did you go on your first date?

Both: Joe's Crab Shack.

What is your favorite date place to re-visit together?

M: Red Lobster and Marcino's.
F: Shalimar Indian Restaurant
Who decides where you go on a date?

M: I don't like to decide so I attempt to trick her into deciding.

F: I always want him to decide, but I usually end up with the final say.

What is the nicest thing he/she has ever done for you?

M: Everything she does is nice.
Messages, gifts, little notes – the whole works.

F: He brought me flowers at Halloween with a little plastic ghost in them and wrote "Boo" on the card.

What is his/her most attractive feature?

M: Her gorgeous, curly auburn hair.
F: Eyes, lips, smile...

What might your friends say the most annoying part of your relationship is?

M: We spend too much time together.
F: Yeah, what he said.

Who is more sensitive in the relationship?

M: I am.

F: He is.

Who is always right?

M: The Man.
F: Whatever. Me.

What is the most romantic thing he/she has ever done for you?

Both: There have been so many romantic moments that it is difficult to distinguish which is the best. Flowers, cards and taking care of each other account for a lot of romantic times.

What is your song?

"I Don't Want To Miss A Thing" by Aerosmith.

What makes him or her more unique than anyone else?

M: She is not only my girlfriend, but my best friend. She's beautiful.

F: The way his eyes light up when he looks and smiles at me.

What are your plans after college?

M: I plan to get the heck out of Indiana and move somewhere warm like Cali.
F: I plan to live somewhere near a beach, possibly California.

me to her.

F: I love his beautiful eyes and his smile – it brightens my day.

What is the most annoying part of your relationship?

Both: We are both so busy that it is hard to balance everything at times. The hardest part of our relationship was being apart for a year.

Who is more sensitive in the relationship?

M: Jenn would be more sensitive, although I do have my moments.

F: Definitely me.

Who is always right?

M: I like being the one who is always right, but it doesn't always end up in my favor. I'm usually willing to admit when I'm wrong.

F: I am most of the time.

How did you first meet?

M: At a Halloween party.

F: At a Halloween party. We took a walk around the block because cops had come and he completely came on to me. What can I say: I am weak.

Where did you go on your first date?

M: Gatz Cazuella's Mexican Restaurant.

What is your favorite date place to re-visit together?

M: Six Flags in DC

F: Ending the night walking along the canal.

Who decides where you go on a date?

M: She does.

F: He does.

What is the nicest thing he/she has ever done for you?

F: He does.

M: Even though she doesn't usually cook, she's spent a lot of time making me her finest cuisines.

F: He surprises me with a candlelight setting, wine and the whole works. It really makes me feel special.

What is his/her most attractive feature?

M: Her intellect, interesting conversation. She's also making me get into touch/discover my art appreciation.

F: His ability to speak other languages to me.

What might your friends say the most annoying part of your relationship is?

M: I spend too much time with her.

Who is more sensitive in the relationship?

M: She is.

What did your parents think the first time they met your boyfriend/girlfriend?

M: They thought very highly of her. My dad called her a "doll".

F: At first I think they thought he was just "another boyfriend," but they really like him. Sometimes I think both of our parents just want to marry us off!!

What is the most absurd thing you've done together?

M: We do that thing where you ride elevators up and down and jump just before it starts moving.

F: He does really funny impressions of a T-Rex and a raging bull. These are pretty absurd. Over the summer we camped out and went tubing.

What are your plans after college?

M: I'm going into the Army.

F: I'm graduating this year and going to law school next year.

Describe your dream date:

M: Walking hand-in-hand on a white sand beach until the sun set.

F: A weekend trip to hike in a state park.

What are your plans after college?

M: I plan on buying a shrimp house so I can eat shrimp until I throw up.

F: Find a beach and live there.

What did your parents think when they first met your boyfriend/girlfriend?

M: They thought she was very sweet, but they thought her five speeding tickets were a little excessive.

F: Somehow they thought he said he was a piano player. They liked that, and were disappointed when they found out he was a T-Comm. major.

Jennifer Burgei and Dusty Ray

F: He is.

Who is always right?

M: I am.

F: Me!

What is your song?

"Is This Love" by Bob Marley.

What did your parents think when they first met your boyfriend/girlfriend?

M: They haven't met her yet.

F: My mother thought he had gorgeous eyes. Very striking.

What are your plans after college?

M: None. Really still thinking.

F: Not sure. I plan to be dancing in New York.

Describe your dream date:

M: A long stay on a deserted island.

F: Just being with him and having his total, undivided attention.

Stephen Gituku & Elisabeth Bell

How did you first meet?

M: Jen was my RA at RusCo my sophomore year. I lived four doors down from her and by the end of the fall semester we were hanging out as friends on a constant basis.

Where did you go on your first date?

M: We went to O'Charley's after a night of paintballing with ResCon residents.

What is your favorite date place to re-visit together?

M: One place we always enjoy going to is the Embassy Suites downtown. One night Jen decided that we should sneak into their pool and take the night off. Overall it was a success. We still go there almost everytime we're downtown. Unfortunately, nowadays the pool is sometimes locked.

F: I decided to go there because we were shocked to find the hotel when we were getting lost in the Circle Center area. We had just turned around the corner and all of the sudden there was a huge hotel with baby ducks swimming in a pond and all the trimmings of a nice hotel. We also like to play in the snow. Basically, we like anything that we consider "an adventure".

Who decides where you go on a date?

M: Jen

F: Me

What is his/her most attractive feature?

M: She has the most attractive smile and her eyes just make me melt.

F: He's beautiful inside and outside. I love his eyes and smile particularly.

Squirrels, BUPD & Me

We laugh, cry and catch bad guys with our police department

Once again our campus has seen a safe and successful year. Butler has seen its lowest death rates in 20 years. The student-to-squirrel ratio has continued to drop thanks to BUPD's "Let's Get Rid Of Them Squirrels" program. And cocaine dealing BUPD cops are now just a bad memory of the past. Yes, Butler is a safe campus thanks to those brave men in blue. So the next time you see a BUPD officer, walk up to him or her and say "Thank you for your service to our campus and community. Without you, we might live in a world of chaos and anarchy." Then run off in the opposite direction screaming profanities.

A.A.U. National Champs, 1924

1924 Drift

The first three-quarters of the season was in the nature of a funeral in which the Bulldog quintet played the leading role. Chicago was the only prominent team that succumbed during this first period.

The fireworks started when Marquette, well-known Wisconsin team, was lashed, 24-18, on its own court. Then Wabash, Haskell, and Franklin fell.

Two high marks of the 1923-24 basketball season will long be remembered by Butler cohorts. First, Franklin — a team that needs little introduction — was outplayed, out-manuevered, out-classed, and outscored on its own floor. It was the first time the Baptists had been beaten during their two years as Indiana college champs. The second highlight was the winning of the A. A. U. national title in Kansas City.

As a relatively small university, sports at Butler are serious business with teams in every sport gaining national attention throughout the years.

Note from the Editor:

The Drift staff wishes to apologize for the lack of historical photos for women's sports. Before Title IX, women's sports barely existed and therefore were not sufficiently covered in past yearbooks.

Freshman today should be thankful they do not have to wear the unflattering uniforms that the 1926 freshman basketball team wore.

Butler 7; Notre Dame 34

1924 Drift

How the game started is sweetest. Butler blocked a kick and fell on the ball behind their own goal posts. It was a clever piece of headwork.

It was a surging, razzing, high-strung crowd that lined the arena. The South

Benders were a bit rancorous because of the Iowa defeat the week before, and proceeded to take out their grudges on the Butlerites. The game turned out to be a bustin', hair-pulling, never-to-be-forgotten tornado that has left its remnant strung ho and yon over Hoosier's sportdom.

Difficult schedule creates season of excitement

By Will Haskett
Staff Writer

In what turned out to be the farewell season for eight-year head coach Sharon Dingman, the volleyball team turned in an exciting season despite a rough overall record.

The team finished at an even .500 for the season (15-15), but struggled at times in conference with a record of 5-7. The season officially ended with a loss in the semifinals of the MCC tournament to Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Before that ending, the entire season was a roller coaster ride for the team.

The pre-season was a mix of brutal losses and experience-building victories. The conference season was full of high expectations that seemed to falter at some key moments.

At one point midway through the season, Butler had a huge victory against state rival Ball State, a win which built momentum for some MCC wins.

The end of the season could have been very triumphant had Butler been able to pull out victories against the best teams in the conference. One big win could have made a big difference on how the season is remembered. Unfortunately, the team fell one key point or person short of some huge victories.

Seven of Butler's opponents throughout the season made it to the NCAA tournament, showing just how hard their schedule turned out to be.

"We had very high expectations of ourselves," outgoing coach Dingman remarked. "We still consider it an above average year."

"This was the most fun group I have ever coached," she said.

Butler lost three senior players in the process: Cory Gulasey, Eileen Murphy, and Kelly Mott. The team will return, however, all six starters for next year's team.

Also joining the roster will be new head coach Sharon King, who will bring her volleyball knowledge from California, as Butler looks to make a serious conference impact in the future.

Tri Delts Win First Volley Series

1925 Drift

Intersorority volleyball, which was introduced at Butler in the spring of 1924, was met with much interest and enthusiasm. Because the game is less strenuous than basketball, an opportunity of enjoying athletics and profiting by physical exercise is afforded every girl. During the period when two teams, consisting of eight members, are fighting for twenty-one points, there is as much suspense and excitement as

First Women's Team Has Strong Showing

1976 Drift

Winning six consecutive contests, Butler's women's volleyball team began successfully in the first season of intercollegiate play.

Eugenia Kriebel's volleys finished the regular season at 9-6 before hosting the Indiana Women's Intercollegiate Sports Organization Southern District Tournament on November 22. Butler bested the ten-team field to advance to the state finals. Taylor won the first of three encounters. IUPUI came up a loser to Butler before Goshen downed the women's team to put them third in the tournament.

The Butler team proved to be competitive, and Coach Kriebel says she is already shooting for improvement next year with returning players.

Though the team lost top runner Julius Mwangi, everyone's hopes were high for the 1999 season. With all but one varsity runner returning and a handful of talented freshmen, the men's cross-country team set high but attainable goals to repeat as conference champions and qualify for nationals a second year in a row.

"We had all the talent we needed to go back to nationals, it was just a matter of putting it all together," Franklin said of his runners.

The season started off strong with easy wins at Butler's annual alumni run and the Stan Lyons Invitational, where the team earned both individual and team championships.

Butler placed first out of 23 teams at the Indiana Intercollegiate meet, earning the national rank of 15th.

the highest in Butler history. But the team faced disappointment in a 13th place finish in a field of 28 the following week, though, at the Roy Griak meet in Minneapolis, Minn.

"Things just didn't seem to click," Krar says of his race. Being one who learns from disappointments, Franklin used this humbling experience to focus on redemption at the upcoming pre-national meet.

The cross-country team then failed to place a runner in the top 25 at the pre-national meet in Bloomington, Ind.

Butler dropped from the top twenty ranked teams in the nation. With no injuries and consistent training, the downward slide was a perplexing mystery.

Though making a second appearance at the national meet was the team's ultimate goal, the men had to first prepare and focus on the upcoming conference meet, which they were able to win convincingly.

Junior Justin Young, the team's top runner, showed up in full force at this meet winning by over 20 seconds.

With a strong showing at the conference meet, the team went to districts upbeat and well prepared. As the race unfolded, Butler came on strong with top runners, Young, Thompson, and Siele all in the top ten and the rest of the seven-man team within the top 75. Midway through the race, though, a few of Butler's men began to falter.

Thompson slowed and fell several positions behind. Krar had trouble finding a rhythm and lost valuable positions as well. Though Young and Siele both placed in the top ten and advanced to the national championship individually, Butler earned fifth place at the meet. Though disappointed that his team did not qualify for the national meet, Franklin expressed pride in their effort.

"I know that is was not for a lack of heart," he commented. "I do think they gave everything, it just wasn't enough."

Consistently at the top of the field of teams, the Butler women's cross country team had another impressive season, led by top senior runners Meghan Berrier and Erin Kelly.

The team proved their talent in many venues throughout the season. For an unprecedented fourth time the Butler squad captured the MCC Women's Cross Country title. No other team in the history of the conference has accomplished this feat.

Another notable effort was winning the Indiana Intercollegiate Meet, topping all Indiana teams. This marks the second time in as many years that the team has won this honor. It is the first time in history that Butler has done this.

Head Coach Joe Franklin was named MCC Coach of the Year for the fourth time. He concentrated on making sure that his top runners had enough breaks and rest to prepare for the large meets. During these times, many other members of the team stepped up and made fine showings.

The team began the season strong and remained that way throughout the fall. It was a season filled with accomplishments, records and titles that will go down in Butler's history books.

Quarterback DeWayne Ewing prepares for the snap during a loss against Morehead State.

It was a season with many highs and many lows. But in the end, the Butler Bulldog football squad ended on a high note and looks forward to a promising future.

To many, a .500 (5-5) season may not be a good one, but most football teams do not go through the agony of so many injuries to key players that coach Ken LaRose's squad endured. Throughout the season, the Bulldogs faced games without their starting quarterback, running back and top two receivers.

Kick Return Specialist

Butler started off the season with a 3-1 record. The only loss came to division IAA power Morehead State in the second week of the season. It looked as if the Bulldogs were going to be strong contender for the Pioneer Football Title. However, the unforeseen occurred. Starting quarterback, sophomore DeWayne Ewing, who was putting up all-conference numbers for four games, went down with what appeared to be a season ending knee injury.

Butler knocked off Wesley in the fourth week of the season for their third win, but Wesley knocked Ewing out for six weeks.

The season began to take a nosedive. The following week Butler traveled to Dayton to take on the Flyers for their first conference game. The Flyers handed Butler their first of four straight conference losses limping. San Diego and Drake took advantage both blowing out the Bulldogs. It was after the Drake game that LaRose forecasted the rest of the season.

"We can't give up on this season, that is not an option," he said. "We are going to fight through this thing, play for pride and end up with a .500 season."

LaRose couldn't have been more right. His squad showed the determination and resolve to come back two weeks after losing to Drake with a win over Quincy.

One week later, DeWayne Ewing made his return to quarterback for the team's final game of the season. Ewing completed 20-39 passes for 245 yards, threw one touchdown and ran for another in the Bulldog's 27-16 win at Lindenwood. The game ended a season that started so successful before taking a turn for the worse. When knocking off the Bulldogs 42-7.

Nothing went right for LaRose's squad over the next three weeks. Homecoming saw the Butler Bowl turned into the "Mud Bowl" on a cold, rainy October day. Despite a great effort by the undermanned Bulldogs, Valparaiso took out the Bulldogs by 13.

Injuries to starting running back Ryan Zimpleman and starting wide receiver Kyle Connor left the Bulldogs all looked lost, the Bulldogs pulled together and triumphed in the end.

"The last two wins let our seniors go out feeling good about the team and themselves," LaRose said after the final win, "it takes us into the offseason giving us something to build on."

"Already our guys are thinking about next year. We have a lot of work to do, but at least we'll be working on a positive finish."

Veteran, youth players reason for success

The men's soccer team, listed in the NCAA preseason "Top 20," still struggled in an up-and-down season.

According to Head Coach Ian Martin, the team peaked at the right point in the season. Prior to the tournament, the Bulldogs won four of their final five matches.

This year's team was a mix of experience and youth, which allowed veteran players to shine and younger players to gain valuable playing time to contribute to the 2000 season's consistency.

Senior Stephen Armstrong finished his career in second place in three career record categories including goals, points and shots. He became only the second player in Butler history to accumulate 100 career points and score 20 or more points in four consecutive seasons.

Freshman Michael Mariscalco began his Butler career strong scoring 10 points on three goals and four assists. Mariscalco was nominated for the MCC Newcomer of the Year, but the honor went to a Wright State player.

Junior Giancarlo Barazza ended his junior season among Butler's career leaders in four offensive categories. He was also named to the MCC All-Conference second team.

Many of the squad's top players will be returning to the men's soccer line-up next year. Twenty of the team's 25 players saw playing time on the field this year. Their experience will contribute to the anticipated success of next season's team.

By Erin Murphy

The Butler Women's Soccer Program went through several new changes for the 1999 season, one of which was getting an entire new coaching staff. Head coach Woody Sherwood along with assistants Greg Miller and Betsy Costello had their work cut out for them going in to the '99 season. The program graduated 12 seniors, including 10 starters (the most of any program in the nation). With such devastating losses, the 1999 season was what most would consider to be a "rebuilding" year. Out of 11 players on the field, they started seven freshman, two sophomores and two juniors with some regularity. Returning key players for the Lady Dawgs were sophomores Susanna Hoppe, Sarah Bourgraf, Angela Lehman and juniors Erin Murphy and Alicia Franklin.

As the season began, Coach Sherwood knew it was going to be a very trying and unpredictable year with schedule that contained six Top 25 teams including eventual National Runner-up, Notre Dame. Midway through the season, freshman goalkeeper, Tricia Czerniak broke her hand and was out for the rest of the year. With no true back-up, Coach Sherwood called upon junior, Meghan Partenheimer, a field player to fill in for the remainder of the season in the net.

Inexperience, youth and goalkeeper problems proved costly throughout the year. However, non-conference games against several top programs helped dramatically in the conference schedule as they went 4-1 and finished tied for 1st place. The team looked to get its first NCAA tourney bid by winning the conference tournament at the end of the year, but was unsuccessful, losing in the semi-finals to the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Thus, ending a difficult year at 5-11-2.

Thirteen freshmen contributed to the successes of the 1999 campaign including Kara Bryan, Hadiatu Dumbuya, Martha Gudiel, Kristin Drogell and Amy Morrisson. With no losses from graduation in '00, Coach Sherwood and the Bulldogs look forward to great seasons in the years to come.

"Please don't let them kick it at me," thinks Butler's #10 as the ball takes an ironic direct attack at her face.

Second season a success

Season results in overall improvement

By Amber Connolly

All things take time to build and with each action it becomes stronger. This statement holds true in the case of the 1999 Butler Women's Golf team.

The team was very young, in only its second year of intercollegiate competition. Four freshmen were a strong addition to the team and with their help this young program will continue to grow and become even more competitive than they were this season.

One exciting development this season was that for the first time, Butler hosted the Butler Women's Fall Classic at Saddlebrook Golf Course. It was a two-day tournament with eight other schools joining the Bulldogs in competition. The team finished in the Top 5 in the inaugural competition.

The six members of the team: Christine Fox, Kay Humphrey, Shannon Jameson, Samantha Keith, Kristi Laskowski and Melanie Macleod showed consistent improvement throughout the course of the season.

Continuing to grow and build on the foundation that has been laid in the two years of the team's existence is the name of the game for the Butler Women's Golf team.

Impressive season for many Bulldogs

Kyle Schmitt

The Butler baseball squad had a rollercoaster 2000 season, with the team alternating between stretches of inconsistent and brilliant play. Fortunately, the Bulldogs shone for most of the year, relying on several outstanding individual efforts to reach the 20-win mark for the third straight season, and to fight for control of the MCC standings.

The Bulldogs tied the school record in 2000 for consecutive wins, as the team ran off a series of seven midseason victories. The streak, which followed a slump in which Butler dropped seven of eight games, culminated in a 12-3 victory over IU-Southeast on April 18.

The team enjoyed several football-score victories during that period, including a 20-8 win over Detroit where the Bulldogs hit seven home runs, setting a team single-game record.

The Bulldogs saw impressive contributions from several players. Senior Eric Storey had a stellar season at the plate, as he became Butler's all-time home run leader with a solo shot in a 7-6 victory over Northwestern in March. Storey later set the career RBI record at Butler with a grand slam at Marian College on April 26.

Storey, Luke Murphy and freshman walk-on Ryan Lundervold all battled for the team lead in hitting. Murphy and Storey, who both took Conference Player of the Week honors in March, and Justin Keever provided veteran leadership to the team as well as giving the Bulldogs some of their top offensive weapons.

The Bulldog offense was supported by a very deep Butler pitching staff. Freshman Pat Neshek struck out 14 batters in a seven-inning, complete game victory over Valparaiso on March 25. Neshek's performance earned him MCC Pitcher of the Week honors, as did Wes Hoane's impressive showing against Detroit on April 16.

Hoane allowed two hits in eight innings to help defeat the Titans 4-2, and clinch Butler's first victory in a series at Detroit in school history.

The Bulldogs were helped throughout the season by the efforts of its freshman class. Lundervold came back from a shoulder injury to give the Bulldogs a threat at the plate, while pitchers Aaron Phillips and Kenny Hughes earned spots in Butler's starting rotation.

The rookies' efforts were complemented by the returns of upperclassmen Jeremy Sinsabaugh and Franco Datillo in April from injuries.

Despite a rash of early-season injuries, the Bulldogs had another strong season, and gave reason to believe that they would remain an MCC powerhouse in the years beyond 2000.

Butler University's softball team fought their way through a tough season, discovering strengths as they faced challenges. In early April, Butler was at the bottom of the Midwest Collegiate Conference with a 9-20 overall record, but the team kept their attitude positive as they moved into conference play.

As quoted in The Butler Collegian, head coach Dick Welch said, "We've shown we can beat some of the conference teams. I feel we could finish in the top half [of the conference]."

His prediction almost came true.

The team played well at a key part of the season, taking two games from the then MCC-leading UW Green Bay Phoenix in late April, boosting their confidence and sending them into tourney play with their first three-game winning streak of the season. The Bulldogs entered the conference tournament as the No. 6 seed.

Butler's season ended May 12 with a loss to No. 3 Loyola, 3-0, and No. 7 Detroit, 2-0 in the MCC tournament at North Central High School. The top-seeded Illinois-Chicago Flames won the tournament, their fifth consecutive regular season title.

Throughout the season, the team saw strong play from young players as well as those with more experience. Seniors Tammy McCune, Corinne Roesener and Carolyn Stoddard played their last games for Butler. Stoddard shares the Butler career home run record.

Freshmen Jeri Keller led the team with a .287 batting average, .368 on-base percentage, 41 hits, 14 doubles, 13 RBIs and 19 walks. Keller was named to the MCC All-Newcomer Team, and first baseman to the All-MCC first team.

Freshman pitcher Melissa Benter's efforts earned her a place on the MCC All-Newcomer Team as well. She struck out 5.5 batters for each she walked on average for the year.

The Bulldogs look forward to the returning talents of starters like Amanda Poast, Kristin Kulpinski, Andrea Keech, Sammi Goldstone, Katie Higgins, Stephanie Burlein, Keller, and Benter, as well as a large recruiting class expected next season.

Training, patience and aggressive play paid off in 2000 for the Butler men's tennis team.

The Bulldogs captured a third consecutive MCC championship at North central High School with a 4-0 victory over UIC in the conference semifinals and a 4-0 victory over Wright State in the final match.

The wins brought Butler's season total to a school-record 19 victories with only seven losses.

The team attributed their strong season to several factors, one being the smoother transition between indoor play early in the semester to the outdoor season, which started after a Spring Break training trip to Greenlefe, Florida.

The team was also led in many meets by the sophomore doubles team of Jimmy Borendame and Brandon Currie, with both also doing well in singles competition.

Currie's season just kept getting better as he continued to win, matching, then breaking the school record for victories in a single season. He became the first Butler tennis player to reach the 30-win mark during MCC tournament play. This brings his two-season total to 56 matches won for the Bulldogs.

Currie and Borendame were each named to the All-MCC team for the second consecutive season, while freshman Sebastian Koehler earned all-conference honors for the first time at the league championship. Currie, last year MCC "Newcomer of the Year," was named MCC "Player of the Year" this season.

Freshmen Peter Voelez and Louis Jacobsohn also impressed head coach Jason Suscha.

"We are a team of strictly freshmen and sophomores," Suscha said to a Butler Collegian reporter early in the Bulldog season. "We will have drastic improvements in all our players once they start to gain confidence in what we want them to do."

It looks like Suscha's words of wisdom proved true in 2000.

Taking a break

Man of the Year

Sophomore Brandon Currie became the first Butler tennis player to reach the 30-win mark in a single season. He also earned the title of MCC "Player of the Year" and was named to the All-MCC team for the second consecutive season along with teammate Jimmy Borendame.

Orth reveals tennis team's preseason goals

By Lindsay Orth
Staff Writer

The main goal for the Butler women's tennis team this year has been to win the MCC Conference, which would give us an opportunity to play in the NCAA tournament.

Last season came in second to the University of Illinois-Chicago and this year we are out for revenge.

The team plays two seasons. There is an individual tournament season the fall and the conference matches are played during the spring season.

This fall we played two tournaments at Ball State University and the University of Detroit. Four individual qualifiers also went to play at the ITA Regional Championships at Ohio State.

At the Detroit Tournament, Butler players won five of the seven divisions. And at the ITA Regional's, Butler's no. 1 player, Pamela Rodriguez, upset the number 8 seed from the University of Minnesota in the first round.

The first half of the spring season started out a little rocky, with Rodriguez out of the line up for the first five weeks of the season with a knee injury. Fortunately, she was ready to play in time for the start conference play.

Although it hurt us not to have Rodriguez in the line-up, everyone had the opportunity to play up a position. We are hoping this will make us stronger as we enter conference play.

As we get closer to the conference tournament the team has been getting more excited and determined to win.

NCAA hopes crushed by eventual runner-up, Florida

By Greg Weitekamp

It may have been the most successful season in over 50 years for the Butler Bulldog's men's basketball team.

With expectations soaring going into the season, head coach Barry Collier's started the season a disappointing 8-7. The Bulldogs were beaten at the buzzer in three of those losses and lost in overtime in another.

After starting the conference season 1-2 with losses at Cleveland State and Detroit, Butler turned it into high gear. The Bulldogs would win their final 12 regular season games and go unbeaten at home for the first time since Tony Hinkle was the coach.

The Bulldogs, though, saved their best games for last. After surviving the first two rounds of the MCC Tournament in Chicago, Butler played two of the finest games this university has seen.

The first came in the MCC Championship game. After splitting the season series with the defending MCC Champion Detroit Titans, Butler and Detroit met again. It was the second straight time the two teams met in the MCC Championship game.

The Bulldogs dominated the Titans in a 19-point blowout win. Sophomore Thomas Jackson, tied a school-record dishing out 15 assists. As a team, Butler assisted on all but two of their field goals.

With the win, Butler earned their third trip to the NCAA Tournament in four years. The Bulldogs entered the tourney carrying their highest seed ever at #12 and faced the fifth seeded Florida Gators.

It was a game that defined the Bulldogs season. Butler controlled the game turning it into a half-court game. Their defense forced Florida to shoot below 40 percent and frustrated the SEC powerhouse.

Butler remained calm as the team carried a seven-point lead into the final five minutes. Florida rallied behind clutch shooting and forced overtime.

In overtime, senior Andrew Graves hit a three-pointer to give the Bulldogs a three-point lead. But just when it looked like the Bulldogs were headed off with the glass slipper, Florida's Mike Miller ended the dream with a touch leaper in the lane as time expired.

The outcome: a 69-68 heartbreaking loss.

The season ended in disappointment, but the future holds promise as Butler returns four starters next year and awaits two very talented recruits.

The 1999-2000 season had its ups and downs. We, as a team, had very high expectations for ourselves. We returned seven players, including four starters, from last year's 17-11 team.

Our team's first challenge came at the end of last year, when a new head coach was named, along with three new assistants. We welcomed the change and were ready to reach the goals we set for ourselves. Our ultimate goal was to win the MCC and go to the NCAA tournament.

The season started out on a high note, as we won the UMKC tournament and were runners up at the Arkansas State tournament. The journey towards conference championship consisted of many ups and downs.

We lost six games in a row, before snapping the streak and then winning three in a row. This seemed to be the case all season.

We were very frustrated throughout this period, and we could find no answers. Being a senior captain, I was very frustrated because I had never experienced losing to this extreme, and I didn't know how to fix the problem.

Looking back now, I realize that we didn't gel as a team and never really learned to play together.

We did have a very disappointing year and didn't reach our goals, but in the long run, I think this season will make us all better people.

We had to deal with a lot of adversity, which will only make us stronger.

I would like to thank my fellow senior teammates for always being there for me, especially through the hard times. I love you guys!

Men's work ethic pays off in and out of the pool

Jack Negro

The Butler Men's Swim Team made impressive strides during the 1999-2000 season.

Scott Cummins, the third head coach in the last four years, began his career at Butler University with convincing victories over Xavier University, IUPUI, and St. Louis University. Under the leadership of captains Jack Negro and Brandon Judkins, the season progressed with many strong showings against bigger schools, such as Notre Dame, Western Kentucky, Louisville, and Ball State.

The Christmas training trip to Casey Key, Florida, tested the team's endurance.

The men swam at least two arduous practices per day in an Olympic-sized pool.

The training was intense and it helped to prepare the men for the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Meet in February.

At the MCC swim meet, the Bulldogs broke several team records and scored more points than ever before. Many swimmers placed in the top sixteen, while Brett Balhoff, Jack Negro, and Chris Conde managed to place in the top eight.

The Bulldog's success has made them eager to compete next season. Brett Balhoff is encouraged by the team's success.

"This season demonstrated our ability to get in the water and compete. We have already signed some impressive recruits, and we should continue to improve," Balhoff said.

Brandon Judkins agreed with Balhoff's comments.

"We would be able to score more points if we had divers," Judkins said.

"However, Hinkle Pool doesn't even have a diving board. So, we go into meets and automatically give away the forty points that are allotted for diving. We lost several meets, strictly because of losing the diving points," Judkins said.

The Butler Men's Swim Team prides itself on the work ethic that their sport demands. The team has 5:30 am practices every morning in addition to afternoon practices. Additionally, the grueling swim season lasts six months, from September until the last weekend of February.

However, the team agrees that all of the hard work pays off and has taught them time management. The team is genuinely proud of the fact that they have managed to meet the demands of swimming while retaining its designation of Academic All-American.

"It doesn't matter if they're talking good about us or bad about us, as long as they're talking about us." However, it is likely that this year, they were talking good about us.

After a long season consisting of adjusting to a new coaching program, surviving two practices daily, and overcoming a dysfunctional pool, the 1999-2000 Butler Women's Swim Team was able to step up to one of their best-ever performances and finishes at this year's MCC Tournament held at Cleveland State University.

This accomplishment as well as the winning outcome of many dual meets was due in part to the extreme depth of the team as well as the steady building of the program. This consisted of a strong incoming freshman class all the way through dedicated senior leadership. Senior Sara Hillman said of her experience, "It has been neat to see the changes in this program just over the past four years. In my four seasons here at Butler, I have swam for three different coaches, and each year we get stronger as individuals and as a team."

This was made evident at year's end through numerous top eight finishes including first place performances by senior Jenny Easterday, sophomore Melinda Harrauld and freshman Laura Dill.

Also almost every record on the board was brought down.

Junior Gina Bullard stated of the season, "Being a part of this team is such a rewarding experience. Not only do we work well together in the pool in our efforts to meet our personal and team goals, but we get the opportunity to make many lasting memories and develop lifelong friendships."

With another season comes another set of expectations, and with the pattern of increased success following the program, those expectations will be set high.

Coach Scott Cumins verified that "seeing how hard these girls work everyday, along with their positive, upbeat attitudes, I have every reason to feel secure in the continued development and achievement of this program."

Former player Kahoun makes powerful entrance as coach

Chris Boone
Staff Writer

Butler lacrosse entered a new era this year with the coaching debut of former player Craig Kahoun. On the field though nothing much changed as the Bulldogs once again proved to be one of the nation's fastest growing and competitive programs.

Continuing with Butler tradition, Kahoun loaded the schedule with top ranked opponents, once again making their slate of games one of the toughest in the country. Finishing with a 5-9 record, the defending Great Western League champions had chances to win games against #3 Loyola and this year's league champion Notre Dame.

The Bulldogs also took on top ten teams in Duke, North Carolina and Virginia.

Whatever game experience was gained in those match-ups will go a long way to improving a young core of players returning. The team will lose their scoring leader in Mike Regan and their playmaker in Chris Vosburgh. Vosburgh leaves Butler second on the all-time assist list and Regan ranks fourth all-time in goals with 104.

He became only the fourth player in Butler history to record 100 goals for his career. They will be missed, but junior Doug Patterson became a legitimate scoring machine this season and transfers Garrett Rosecrans and Geoff Stark provide solid midfield play.

This season was a statement year for senior goalie Marc Ferrandino and he made a big one. Ferrandino earned the starting position in the preseason and never relinquished it for the entire year. His solid leadership between the pipes will prove invaluable to sophomore understudy Brendan Winkler who will try to fill Ferrandino's shoes next season. Along with a solid nucleus of young defensemen like Jason Mauro, Adam Callahan and Carson Beegle, next year's opponents will face a formidable challenge in putting the ball in the net.

Overall, Kahoun's first year was a positive one in establishing his college coaching career and he will no doubt waste no time in showcasing his Bulldog team once again as a premiere lacrosse program.

Fraser Thompson leaves his mark

Laurie Bowman

The Butler men's track team earned a solid third place finish in their last meet of the season during the MCC Championships, bringing a strong season to a close.

Freshman Alex Hall sprinted to win in the 100-meter dash with a time of 10.70. He also took second in the 200-meter dash with 22.07, making Hall one of three Butler athletes to claim individual titles in the meet. Junior

Fraser Thompson notched a double-win by capturing the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 9:12.81 and then winning the 1,500 meter race less than an hour later in 3:57.25. Junior Justin Young took Butler's final title in the 5,000-meter race with a time of 14:54.96.

But the MCC meet was just the beginning of some of the most impressive performances by Butler runners. Distance runners Fraser Thompson from Victoria, Australia and Justin Young from Peoria, Illinois, each qualified for the NCAA Outdoor National Championship May 31-June 3.

Thompson became the first Bulldog in more than half a century to score NCAA points for Butler. He took seventh place in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 13:58.07, ten seconds slower than his school record-setting 13:48.55.

The two points Thompson was awarded marked the first time since 1948 that the Bulldogs scored in the national meet.

Young also brought Butler a non-scoring, 11th place finish with a time of 31:13.64 in the 10,000 meter run.

"Fraser and Justin both ran extremely well at the national meet," stated Butler head coach Joe Franklin in a press release. He accompanied both athletes to Durham, N.C.

"Fraser ran a great race, and actually took the lead with about a mile and a half to go before dropping back. Justin led the 10,000 for the first three and a half miles, but probably lacked the experience at that level to hang onto the lead."

Discussing hand lotion

"I just bought some new hand lotions. My hands feel really soft now. So before the race, I want everyone to touch my hands. Well, what's everybody waiting for? Touch it... touch my damn hand!" Track and Cross Country coach Joe Franklin motivates his runners before a meet.

Loper leads the pack at MCC tourney

Senior sets tourney record in hammer throw

Butler placed third for the second year in a row at the Midwest Collegiate Conference Outdoor Track and Field Championships held at IUPUI May 11.

Detroit won the one-day, league championship meet against Butler, University of Detroit Mercy, Loyola University and the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Senior Tara Loper led the team with record-breaking performances, also earning the Outstanding Performer title for field events. She took both the hammer throw with a conference record toss of 182-03 and the shot put with a toss of 43-05. Loper also placed second in the discus with a throw of 159-04 and came in third in the javelin with a throw of 98-01.

Butler's younger track team members' hard work during the season paid off in the final competition of the year. Junior Monika Stupian, won the 3,000-meter race (10:21.60) and placed third in the 1,500-meter race, earning the title Newcomer of the Year for running events. Freshman Danielle Kerr was also awarded the Newcomer of the Year title in field events after winning the high jump (5-5).

Some of the team's senior athletes attended their last meet as Bulldogs.

Senior Meghann Berrier of Westerville, Ohio, won last year's 5,000-meter race, but was unable to compete this year because of an injury. Senior Lauren Karch of Lagrange, Illinois, was the only returning Butler champion in the meet, and is the MCC record-holder in both the 100-meter hurdles and the 400-meter hurdles.

Face-off

"Butler has a hockey team?" Such a question was common at the beginning of the hockey season this past year.

However, by the end of their season, the team had made a name for themselves on Butler's campus and elsewhere.

Team president and junior forward Chris Dietz said, "What has made this season so much fun is the fact that we are so much more competitive than we have been in the past."

The Butler hockey team played schools both within and out of their division. Even as a division III team, they played division II teams such as Purdue University and DePaul University.

The team had its share of obstacles. They lacked a coach, and was only able to hold practice once per week. The team also struggled financially throughout past years and into this season.

Their funding problems soon changed, after their season ended with an 11-7 record and an invitation to the American Collegiate Hockey Association national tournament in Annapolis, Md. from March 3-5.

The team did not at first anticipate being able to go to the tournament because of costs and debt. Sophomore defenseman Ryan VanZant said, "We pretty much figured we weren't going to the tournament. We were just proud to have been invited."

However, Butler University

gave the team a $4000 grant, including transportation and lodging for the tournament. Union Planters Bank also granted the team $750.

The team did not disappoint. In the first game of the tournament, the Bulldogs won 7-2 against American University. The second game against Georgia Tech ended in Butler's favor with a score of 5-2, sending the team to the championship game.

They returned to play Georgia Tech again in that fateful, final game. The Bulldogs shut them out with a final score of 3-0.

The Bulldogs ended the tournament with a perfect 3-0 record, giving them the ACHA Division III National Championship title.

Next year, the team will return to the tournament to defend their title and their respect.

Marshall, Berrier receive top honors

Sports banquet announces years' top athletes

Courtesy of www.butlersports.com

Seniors Mike Marshall (Cincinnati, Ohio) and Meghann Berrier (Westerville, Ohio) walked away with the top male and female athletic awards at Butler University's annual all-sports reception held at Hinkle Fieldhouse on Wednesday afternoon.

The year-ending event was held to pay tribute to Butler's 19 athletic teams and included the presentation of most valuable player and mental attitude awards, plus several special recognition and scholarship awards, to Butler's student-athletes.

Marshall, who helped lead Butler's men's basketball team to four consecutive 20-win seasons and four straight postseason tournament appearances, was named Butler's Male Athlete of the Year.

He finished his Butler career in fifth place on the Bulldogs' all-time rebounding list, while playing in a school-record 126 career games. He was a two-time All-Midwestern Collegiate Conference performer and two-time Butler most valuable player.

Berrier, one of the top female distance runners in Butler history, was named Butler's Woman Athlete of the Year.

She helped Butler to four consecutive women's cross country championships, while recording the fastest women's cross country time in Butler history. She earned All-MCC honors three times and was named the Bulldogs' most valuable player last season.

Juniors LaVall Jordan (Albion, Mich.) and Lynze Lysen (Frankfort, Ill.) were named recipients of the Paul D. "Tony" Hinkle Scholarship for outstanding athletic achievement.

Jordan was the leading scorer on Butler's 23-8 men's basketball team last winter, while Lysen was the most valuable player on Butler's women's volleyball squad.

Juniors Fraser Thompson (Victoria, Australia) and Kylie Galbraith (Anderson) received

www.butlersports.com

Helen Tewksbury Awards for outstanding achievement in scholarship, leadership and athletics.

Thompson was named MCC "Newcomer of the Year" in cross country last fall, while Galbraith was a team captain and assist leader on Butler's volleyball squad. Both earned a 4.0 grade point average last fall.

Sophomore Melinda Harrauld (Arlington Hts., Ill.), a two-time school record-holder on the women's swimming team, was named the recipient of a $1,000 Dean Herbert F. Schwomeyer Scholarship, presented for outstanding athletic and academic achievement. She's maintained a perfect 4.0 grade point average for two years.

The Frank "Pop" Hedden Award, which honors Butler's outstanding male and female freshman student-athletes was presented to men's basketball player Joel Cornette (Cincinnati, Ohio) and softball pitcher Melissa Benter (Mayville, Wis.).

Leading more than just cheers

By Karen Sells
Staff Writer

Once dismissed simply as the voice of school spirit, the Butler University cheerleaders are proving once and for all the legitimacy of their sport.

Unlike other athletes, the Butler squad commits to an entire year of participation, divided between football in the fall and basketball in the winter and spring.

Additionally, they cheer at select women's basketball and men's and women's soccer games, making for a busy schedule of challenging workouts.

Practicing six hours a week and cheering most Thursdays and weekends, they somehow manage to find enough time for greek involvement, student government, academic honoraries and social lives.

While focusing their immediate efforts on their performance at games, there always exists a larger goal of sweeping up the competition at cheerleading camp.

"My favorite memory is of camp in Wisconsin," freshman cheerleader Beth Toon said. "We all bonded and did really well. We even walked away with five trophies."

It is clear that these pepsters defy the classic stereotype that cheerleaders are airheads.

Butler squad members are leaders on campus, successful in the classroom, and professionals at the tricky task of time management.

Though rarely acknowledged for their diverse accomplishments, Toon notes that it is refreshing to receive a pat on the back from others on campus every once in a while.

"Most of the people I meet want to know about my experiences cheerleading," she said. "I really appreciate the support."

The squad is comprised of two seniors, two juniors, two sophomores, and seven freshman.

They completed a successful year in the 1999-2000 season and stands poised to further hone their skills in the following year.

Dancers enthrall crowds

For the love of dance

By Karen Sells
Staff Writer

It is a little known fact that the Butler University dance team is truly a labor of love. With no professional choreographer, faculty sponsor, or coach, the women on the team draw primarily on their love of dance as the motivation for their efforts.

You will find them during the week practicing in the Atherton Fitness Center under the shameless watch of the male students lifting weights and center stage at almost every campus-wide student rally and competition. And that is when they are not performing at half-time.

Their efforts have paid off over the years as the team is quickly becoming one of the most in-demand acts for campus events, and the star of such traditions as Geneva

Stunts and Spring Sing.

The dance team is a much-needed outlet for those who are interested in less traditional methods of dance than the Jordan College of Fine Arts has to offer, or who have had some dance experience in high school, but not enough to pursue it as their major concentration.

Auditions are held annually for new members and anyone interested in committing time, sweat, creativity and talent to the team is encouraged to attend.

Commencement

2000

It was strange to look around and see the faces you came to know so well over the past 4 years and realize that we were all going separate ways. We were all heading into the next phases of our lives. It was exciting and sad. Sad, not because we worried we would lose touch with our best friends, but because we realized how many paths had crossed our own and were suddenly branching off. Exciting because the success ahead of us all was now that much closer.

A quick word or two from Chad Martin, Editor-in-Chief

If anyone wanted to find me during the 1999-2000 year at Butler, they could have found me in the Drift office, where I spent a majority of my senior year. Sure, I still got out often, but my ultimate goal was to create the greatest publication known to man. With this goal I was also expecting the immediate title of "King of the World." But if that goal was set to high, then my second goal was to create one of the best yearbooks Butler had ever seen. The reader will obviously be the judge.

Progress was hindered by only having a single computer (and a Macintosh computer for that matter). Student apathy also made creating a yearbook more difficult. Asking someone to submit a photo, answer a question, or write a story was of extreme difficulty.

My idea behind a successful yearbook was lots of photos and funny captions. And I believe there are plenty of photos of students participating in a variety of activities. With all of these photos, surely there was one caption or photo that made you laugh.

I searched through the entire collection of Drift yearbooks from olden days and compiled the best ideas and photos to be used in this year's edition.

Those students appearing in this year's Drift were either in front of a Drift camera or submitted photos of their own. So if you did not appear in the yearbook, but you would like to, submit photos to the Drift office with you in it.

Taking a healthy majority of this year's workload, I feel I have still managed to create an excellent historical document capturing the lives of many students in the year 2000, sometimes contrasting them to students of Butler's past.

With that said, here are a few photos from experiences that Butler has created for me. And yes, the new rule is if you finish the yearbook you get your own page in it.

That's me receiving a hug from Barbara Hobbs and Tony Lamont after winning a million dollars on "Hoosier Millionaire."

FILLING PRESCRIPTIONS. FULFILLING CAREERS.

St. Vincent Hospital Pharmacy Operations

The spirit of caring. It's who you are. It's what you believe. It's where you belong. Keeping consistent with our mission of serving our patients: body, mind and spirit - the St. Vincent Pharmacy plays a key role in providing extraordinary patient care at our 600+ bed tertiary care center and medical referral facility, which has been recognized as the quality leader in the Indianapolis market by Central Indiana health consumers three consecutive years. We dispense over 9,000 medications every day. For patients in surgery, oncology, pediatrics - literally anywhere in our facility. Keeping pace with that kind of schedule takes willingness on the part of every team member to learn new skills. Support innovation. Encourage one another.

Think you can flourish in a progressive, fast-paced environment like this? Contact our Human Resources department at (317) 338-9890 for more information. We offer a competitive benefits and wage package, commensurate with experience. Please submit your resume to: St. Vincent Hospitals, 2001 W. 86th Street, Indianapolis, IN 46240-0970. To learn more about us or additional opportunities available, visit our Web site at www.stvincent.org. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Our four years have passed with much sadness and splendor. We took the cards we were dealt and built, creating an institution which influenced us and that we influenced. Balancing studies, sports, extracurricular, family and time for self, we did it. We accomplished what we knew we could do – proudly graduating with a diploma from the prestigious Butler University.

The hands of time continue to tick as a foreground to the future. Where each of us will end up is known only by Destiny (not by some girl you know named Destiny, but by the idea of Destiny).

The past is behind us. Keep your eye on the road that lies ahead of you.
